Depot purchase on 'dead center'

BY MARY G. SEILEY
City purchase of the old CSX depot remains mired in multi-governmental red tape, but the mayor vows the city will prevail.

No citizen complaints on taxes

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER
The Hancock County Board of Supervisors met Friday to hear from citizens concerning property tax problems, but no one from the county showed up for the meeting.

offered to meet in emergency session whenever necessary to take action, racing to qualify for receipt of federal money to restore the old structure.

When Councilman Tad Black suggested the entire deal possibly could collapse, Mayor Eddie Favre stood firm: "There's a possibility we're going to die tomorrow, but we're going to get the depot."

The city has a $580,000 grant from Federal Transportation Enhancement Funds to restore the 1928 structure on Railroad Avenue, and has agreed to pay some $86,000 to purchase it.

But the project has hit one snag after another, and the purchase is still pending.

As it stands, city officials need state and federal approval of unusual wording in the title, which would give the city a perpetual easement, rather than outright ownership, of a small portion of the building.

The railroad company wants to retain rights to the portion of the building within 50 feet of the tracks.

City Attorney John Scafide told councilmen Wednesday that he's been working to move the matter "off dead center," but federal and state officials haven't given final approval of the arrangement.

In other matters Wednesday, city officials allocated up to $4,000 to finance a reception and party for Miss Teen USA pageant contestants here Aug. 4. Favre said he hopes to have area merchants donate small gifts or gift certificates to the contestants, in addition to the city providing food and keepsakes.

Hopefully, the film crews with Miss Teen USA will give the city good coverage nationally, the mayor said. And, he said, relatives of the contestants may be lured to Bay St. Louis to visit shops which participate in the promotion.

Council deferred action on a citizen's request for help with a drain line problem on South Beach Boulevard. Joe Viguerie told council he'd purchased a vacant lot and planned to build a home on it, but has been denied a building permit because an abandoned drain line crosses the lot.

Viguerie said he didn't know the line existed until after he

Zoning

Ward 4 citizens give input on changes

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Residents of Ward 4 in Bay St. Louis bombarded city planning and zoning officials Thursday with concerns over the future of their predominately residential area.

The action came as the city launched a series of meetings on a comprehensive plan to guide development for the next two decades.

While there is no plan yet, citizens who were asked for their thoughts Thursday had about two hours' worth of advice for the Planning and Zoning Commission. Issues aired included industrial activity in residential areas, protection of historic properties, limiting commercial activity along the beachfront, and increasing staffing to enforce the city's zoning laws. Part of the reason officials had chosen Ward 4 as the premiere public meeting in the series is it's mostly a residential section, lacking the complexity

Survey of seawall/shoreline to be conducted by Engineers

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Beach Boulevard's shoreline from Cedar Point to Bayou Caddy will be inspected for possible emergency work by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Hancock County supervisors, meeting in an informal session Thursday, agreed to have engineers survey the condition of the seawall and shoreline along the entire stretch of the county's waterfront.

The recommendations that stem from the inspection may be used by the county to ask the Corps for additional emergency construction to protect Beach Boulevard from erosion.

Agreement on the matter came after the Corps' Johnny L. Grandison urged supervisors to ask for any additional help with the local shoreline problem as soon as possible. Grandison, a study manager in the Corps' Planning Division, said the Corps is facing a September deadline for beginning any "new projects" under its emergency program.

After that, he said, no new projects can be considered until Fiscal 1996. In addition to taking a look at the shoreline along the Bay and the Sound, Grandison said the Corps could consider emergency work on any significant erosion problem in the county.

He made the comments after briefing supervisors on an emergency project the Corps is expected to begin constructing by September. The Corps will be building revetments along the existing seawall from Bay View Court to the Ulman Street Pier area, and between Market and Favre streets in Waveland.

In addition, the Corps is studying construction of a new seawall structure between Bay View and the Highway 90 Bridge.

Beyond those measures, however, Grandison said the Corps may well be able to do

Scianna to head Bay Council

Leadership on Bay St. Louis City Council changed hands Wednesday when Charles C. Scianna was elected president of council, assuming the position held by councilman James C. Thriffley for the past several years.

Councilman Tad Black, in his first term of office, was elected vice president of council, the position Scianna previously had held. Scianna is in his second full term of office.

Cedar Point sewer battle heats up

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Bay St. Louis city officials may turn to the state Public Service Commission, or the courts, to resolve a months-long battle with Sea Shore Utilities. City officials Wednesday authorized the mayor to take "whatever legal action deemed appropriate" to resolve the city-utility battle, including proceedings before the Public Service Commission, and/or condemnation.

The conflict has held up the city's plans to install sewer lines in the Cedar Point area.

The utility company obtained a state certificate in 1967 to operate a water and gas service system in the Cedar Point area, before it was annexed by the city.

After annexation, the city leased the lines for a while, but the lease expired in the mid 1980's, city officials say.

The city now needs to relocate the water lines, before proceeding with the sewer line installation. Negotiations for city acquisition of the utility system, however, are at an apparent impasse.

Wednesday, City Attorney John Scafide said the city is proceeding with obtaining water line rights-of-way from 28 property owners. He said some property owners had expressed concern about the impact that the project would have on large trees, but the city plans to seek professional advice on how to avoid damaging the trees.

Scafide said he expects to have all necessary rights-of-way for the relocated waterline in a month.

Meanwhile, councilmember Charles Scianna said residents of Cedar Point are in dire need of a completed sewer project. "They have to pump out their septic tanks once a month," Scianna said.

Later, council voted to go into executive session to discuss resolving the Sea Shore Utilities conflict, and emerged with the decision allowing condemnation of the lines, or action at the PSC.

That action could include asking the commission to revoke Sea Shore's old permit to operate utilities in the Cedar Point area.

Family conferences may clarify duties

By Dr. Ann Jarratt
 4-H Youth Development Specialist
 Cooperative Extension Service

"I'm supposed to babysit my younger brother and sister this summer while my parents are at work. There are two problems with this — my out-of-control brother and sister don't do a thing I tell them, and my parents expect me to do this for nothing. I don't think this is fair. What do you think?"

You're concerned that your parents are taking you for granted and they've given you a responsibility without the authority to carry it out. I understand your concerns.

Let's think first about what to do about your out-of-control brother and sister. Ask to talk privately with your parents about the situation — not in the presence of the younger children.

Prepare yourself with specific descriptions of what your brother and sister do in the parents' absence that concerns you. Telling your parents that the little kids drive you nuts, even though that may be absolutely true, won't be helpful.

If the children ride their bicycles in the street when they've been told never to leave the yard without permission, that should get your parents' attention.

If they insist on playing with matches in the middle of the living room carpet, let your parents know about it. See what I mean? After they understand your concerns, ask them to call a family conference and explain the rules they expect each child to follow.

Ask them to explain to the younger ones what your responsibilities are and what authority you have to do your job.

About not getting paid for your work, I don't have an answer except that you need to talk about your feelings with your parents. They may consider that you're just helping to carry out family responsibilities and nobody gets paid for doing their share of keeping the household running.

If you're babysitting instead of having an outside job, they might be persuaded to compensate you in some way. Whatever the outcome, go into the discussion with a positive attitude and in a businesslike manner. Be prepared to negotiate with them.

"Gangs are taking over our neighborhood, and I'm scared to death of all of them. A good friend has been talking about them a lot, even though she says she doesn't belong to one. I'm becoming afraid to trust her because I'm scared she will get me involved somehow. What should I do?"

You should be scared to death of gangs and gang members. Teens die every day because of gang activity.

Staying out of a gang may seem hard, but getting out of one once you're in it would be much, much harder. Some people never get out alive.

You are acting wisely by being careful what you say to your friend who seems so "pro gang." You may need to find a new friend, since people, especially teens, often are judged by the company they keep.

Look for friends outside your circle. Check out clubs or other activities offered by your school or church to find friends that are less likely to be involved in gangs.

If you have questions concerning your teenage years, write Dr. Ann Jarratt, 4-H youth development specialist, Box 9641, Mississippi State, MS 39762.

Card of Thanks

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Joe Jeanfreau, Edith Davis, Joe Bilbo and the rest of the crew for a job well done on Deer Drive in Garden Island community.

Mr. Jeanfreau and his crew showed a lot of interest and devotion in their work by devoting much of their weekends repairing the street so the residents could get in and out of the community without damaging their cars.

Joe Jeanfreau and Edith Davis came out on Sunday checking the street and grading it so everyone could get in and out without getting stuck or damage to their cars.

If Mr. Sam Cuevas reads this, he should be thankful to have employees like the above-named people. Mr. Cuevas should congratulate each one of these people for a job well done.

P.S. Thanks again Joe and your crew for being so concerned for the residents on Deer Drive.

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

Your gossip/reality quotient

"Do you think O.J. is guilty?" For me, this quickly became the most unwelcome question around on the heels of the double murder in Brentwood, Calif. Within hours after the shocking mid-June news, I began turning away in disgust from all the media.

Judging from the hurt, weary and disgusted comments of many friends and acquaintances, I was not nearly alone. The deepest resentment was reserved for many elements of the media which sensationalized everything into a three-ring circus.

Sure, it is their job to search for the truth; yet, by the same token, certainly not to spread damaging rumors which help no one but Satan himself. We have enough to deal with in life without getting into the evil world of rumormongering.

It gives one heartache and no little uneasiness to observe the media in a feeding frenzy, circling like sharks in bloody water, howling and gnashing their teeth like ravenous, crazed wolves in the very act of tearing their prey to shreds.

Of course, the bottom line for the media is the coveted dollar. Money talks as always; everything else walks. Whatever makes good copy is what gets priority at a given time.

There is hardly a

Mr./Mrs./Ms. Clean anywhere in the media unless there is enough money inspiring them to be clean. The media have shown themselves to be able and relentless pursuers of facts, but all the while just as doggedly mercenary.

Information prostitutes sprang up all over, offering tantalizing tidbits of words and evidence, seeking to sell their wares to checkbook journalists who gladly pay a fat fee for the opportunity to scoop their peers.

They were put on trial that fateful June day, but so were we all in the whole U.S. and even the world. Every American has been and still is being put through a purifying ordeal which questions the character and motivations of each person.

From our very childhood, we are put to this test every day of our lives. However, this is one of those special times in life when the test is much stricter and the results unspeakably more glaring and convincing.

In short, this ongoing test rotates around our claim to be believers, even Christians. Addressing Christians in particular, the question is: If Jesus were walking the earth now, what would be his reaction to the O.J. three-ring circus?

Could you picture Jesus hunched over, locked into the boob tube, his heart in his mouth, breathlessly waiting for the next twists and turns in the fast-breaking Brentwood murders?

Would you be able to characterize Jesus as full of curiosity about the latest rumors and theories, slaving over the prurient stories of a celebrity love gone awry, unable to rest for fear of missing the latest developments?

Since you have no doubt about the reactions of Jesus, and since you claim to be an imi-tator of Jesus, how much like Jesus are you in your personal reactions to the O.J. circus?

Are you homed in on the news because your special entertainment is the sights, sounds and rumors of other people's misfortunes, illness, tragedy and death?

Do you fancy yourself a murder analyst, a detective, a lawyer, a psychiatrist? How much are you like Jesus who did not claim to be anything but a forgiving, healing servant?

Mason announces candidacy for Waveland mayor

Waveland businessman and civic leader John C. Mason has announced his candidacy for mayor of the City of Waveland in the November 8 primary election.

Mason has pledged to revitalize the city.

"Knowing the people of Waveland as I have for many years, they will enthusiastically join the effort to breathe new life and prosperity to our city as we stand together at the threshold of a new century and new era of progress."

Mason said if elected he will complete the task of seeking new business, added tourism, street improvement and better drainage to meet the needs of an exploding population.

"The financial needs of Waveland must be carefully addressed and sound financial planning will receive the utmost attention of my administration," Mason stated.

Mason, 57 and a Republican, is a native of Oklahoma City, Okla. and has been a Waveland resident for the past 19 years. He was educated at St.

Joseph's Orphanage, Oklahoma City, and at Father Flanagan's Boys Town in Nebraska. He later attended Kansas City Community College and the University of Washington at Seattle.

He served for four years in the U.S. Marine Corps.

Self-employed, Mason has long been active in community affairs. He is immediate past president of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and the Waveland Civic Association. He also is a past president of Rotary International, Bay St. Louis Chapter, and serves as chairman of the Rotary Interact Committee, which fosters better understanding between Rotary, Interact of Bay High and the community.

Mason is a member of the American Legion Post 77, Waveland; the U.S. Marine Corps League, Gulf Coast Detachment; and is a life member of the Father Flanagan's Boys Town Alumni Association. He was recently selected to serve as a member of the Boys Town of New Orleans advisory board.

John Mason

He is married to the former Debra J. Lucas of Waveland. They have two daughters, Sara, 15, and Robin, 13, and live in Waveland.

Mason said his complete platform in support of his candidacy will be announced at a future date.

additional "emergency" program work elsewhere along the waterfront. Recent policy revisions, he said, have dramatically cut the red tape involved in getting Corps approval for such projects.

Supervisor Robert Peterson said the county would have William Mitchell, who engineered the recent beach renourishment program, and county engineer Larry Seal, inspect the entire stretch of Beach Boulevard for other potential Corps projects.

Meanwhile, Grandison said construction of the two revetment sections should be in progress by September. Plans and specifications for the project have been approved by the Corps, he said, and a decision has been made to award the contract under a Small Business Administration program rather than through competitive bidding.

Assuming that negotiations with the chosen contractor go well, and a contract price is agreed on, the work could begin by late August or early September, he said.

If contract price negotiations fail, he said, the project will be put up for competitive bidding.

Zoning

of issues other parts of town present.

"Basically, it's a pretty quiet part of town," said commissioner Keven Fitzpatrick as he opened the session.

The city's main concern for the district, commissioners said, is the existence of industrial zones within the residential area. During the planning process, city officials may decide to rezone some of the now-unused industrial property to residential zoning, officials said.

Citizens at the meeting endorsed that idea fully, and some complained about operations of Alcan Cable on Central Street.

Residents of Webb and Third streets said Alcan's operations are too noisy, particularly at night. And they complained the company generates speeding traffic through narrow residential streets during shift changes.

They also expressed concern over potential expansion by the company, recently named Industry of the Year by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce. With some 130 employees, Alcan manufactures some $60 million worth of cable per year.

One woman complained of heavy equipment traveling from Alcan down an access road to Third Street, and said she worries over potential expansion of the plant.

Alcan Manager Pierre Langevin said Friday, however, there are no plans for expansion. The access road to Third Street, he said, was put in to provide emergency access only and is kept closed with a padlock and chain.

It was used several months ago by a hauler taking away debris and old equipment, said Langevin, but its main purpose is to provide a backup, emergency access route.

He also said the city is responsible for enforcing traffic violations, rather than Alcan. Langevin said he's heard no complaints from residents of the area, and added they should call him at his office if they have concerns about the plant.

Some of Thursday's meeting was devoted to the idea of creating an "overlay" zoning district to protect historic properties -- the area at issue would retain its residential zoning classification, but would have extra regulations concerning what can be done with historic properties.

Fitzpatrick expressed concern that the city has, for instance, no regulation prohibiting total demolition of historic properties or governing what types of changes can be made to their exterior.

Charles Gray, president of the Hancock County Historical Society, noted the city has 570 properties on the National Register of Historic Places. He said his group would be happy to help draft historic district regulations for the city.

Several members of the Bay St. Louis Community Association addressed the commission, urging that Ward 4 be protected as a residential section of the city. Their suggestions included a request that city zoning be extended to the corporate boundaries in the water -- action some hope would prevent casinos locating along Beach Boulevard.

While some expressed concern over the idea of "overlay" districts for special zoning regulations, Peggy Dutton said her group has no objections to such districts -- as long as they contain more, not fewer, regulations than the primary zoning.

She also called for tightening regulations governing "special exceptions" to the zoning ordinance.

Dorothy McLemore, another member of the association, urged the city to adopt new regulations governing the relationship of lot size and building size, to make sure houses and apartments aren't crammed on small lots.

She also said the city needs to address its increasing drainage problems, and strengthen and enforce its tree ordinance.

The commission's next public forum is set for July 14 at Bay High Auditorium, 7 p.m. The session will address issues in the highway-commercial portion of town.

Girls softball has great season

Special to the Echo
Bay St. Louis Girls Little League Softball, located at McDonald Field, has another great season. Thanks to sponsors and parents, who gave time and money, the program is bigger and better than ever.

This year there are approximately 185 girls, age 9 to 18 playing fast pitch softball in the Bay. Girls from Waveland, Bay St. Louis and Pass Christian all share in the fun.

There is new equipment, new uniforms, improved fields, added new field lights, new announcer's stand, new fencing and much more.

Appreciation goes to everyone who helped with the program this past year.

Standings at the end of this year are:

Little League Div. Ages 9-12

First, Chucks Mardi Gras, 16 wins, 3 losses

Second, Allstate Aces, 12 wins, 7 losses

Third, American Legion Ladies, 11 wins, 8 losses

Fourth, Knights of Columbus, 8 wins, 10 losses

Fifth, Thomas Troop, 6 wins, 13 losses

Sixth, Farm Bureau, 4 wins, 15 losses

Senior League Div. Ages 13-15

First, Trophies, Etc., 16 wins, 0 losses

Second, Simmons Construction, 10 wins, 6 losses

Third, Crockett's Cardinals, 6 wins, 9 losses

Fourth, Penrose Babes, 5 wins, 9 losses

Fifth, Waveland Wildcats, 1 win, 14 losses

The Bay St. Louis Girls Softball League would like to inform the community that the girls have a great All-star program, and this may be the year to go all the way to the World Series.

Bay St. Louis will be hosting the state tournament July 8 through July 14 at McDonalds Field. The league will also be hosting the Little League Sectional Tournament July 22-28.

All ages, 9 through 18 will be playing.

Hopefully the community will come out and see their team play and support the program. There will be hot sausage and Italian sausage po-boys, hamburgers, hot dogs, plate lunches and much more.

The games will be great, and the atmosphere is one everyone can enjoy. Anyone wishing to contribute to the girls program, please contact Bill Carragee, league president at 466-4353, or Madonna Peterson, treasurer, at 467-5882, or call the park at 466-4793.

Donations of time, equipment, sponsorship, advertising signs or money will be greatly appreciated and is tax deductible.

CUEVAS QUOTES

By Ellis C. Cuevas

I still see motorists riding without seat belts. As of July 1, 1994, it is mandatory in Mississippi to use seat belts.

I was chatting recently with Hancock County Sheriff Ronnie Peterson and he said it has gotten to be a habit for him to automatically buckle up when he enters a vehicle.

I wore out the buckle on the driver's side seat belt in the Caprice I formerly drove.

In covering numerous vehicular accidents over the years, I have seen many motorists who were thankful they were wearing a seat belt.

I have seen those too who wished they had been wearing a seat belt.

There are a few who will argue there is no need to wear a seat belt, but one must remember, it is now the law in Mississippi.

This is a very busy time of the year for Hancock County Board of Supervisors.

The Board of Supervisors will start next week reviewing budget requests from various county agencies.

Just how the county received tax dollars will be split in order to give every agency their fair share is not an easy task.

Many folks think the county supervisors meet for a couple hours two or three times a month to handle the county's operation.

That may have been the case many years ago, but how times have changed in recent years.

During the budget proposal, the supervisors will be meeting several extra days, as there is a large number of agencies that will be making budget presentations.

Being a supervisor in Hancock County is no longer a part time position.

There must have been a record number of visitors to Hancock County over the long Fourth of July weekend.

The Hancock County Beach maintenance crew had their work cut out for them on Tuesday.

Litter and trash along the beach amounted to one 18-wheeler and two dump truck loads.

This does not include the amount collected by the City of Bay St. Louis from its barrels along the beach.

I was glad to see the swift action to collect all of the litter.

Who knows, maybe one day everyone will be more tuned to using litter barrels and help us keep our beaches and roadways litter free.

I know you have been reading a lot about collection of trash within the City of Waveland.

Many residents of Waveland have been spoiled on the collection of trash.

There has been a trash collection ordinance on that city's books for many years, but it has not been enforced.

On tree trimmings, etc., the garbage collector will accept it if it is bagged or tied.

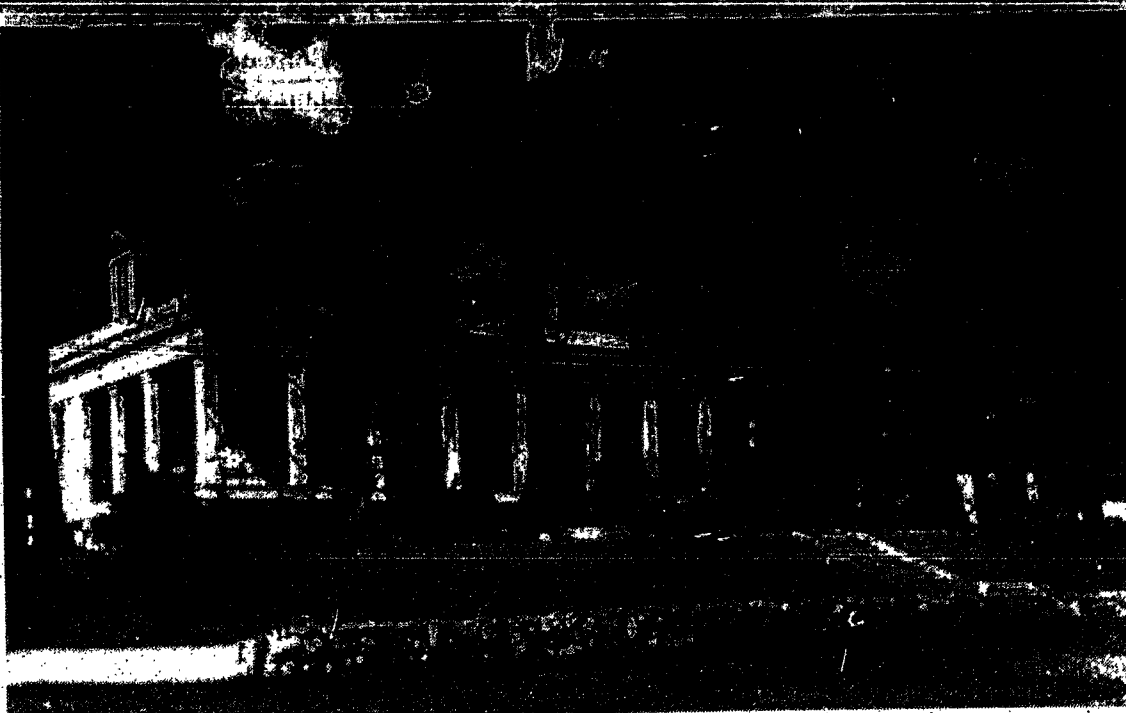

I realize I live in Bay St. Louis, but right now I am in the process of removing a large pecan tree from my yard.

I cut out the wood for my brother's fireplace and have the rest collected by the garbage man.

Of course, I do take the time to tie the limbs in bundles so the workers can grab them and place them in the garbage truck.

Over the years I have removed several trees and never had any trouble getting the remains collected.

There are others in my neighborhood who have had problems, but that is because they did not properly prepare it to be picked up.

Pirate House

The Pirate House was located on Beach Boulevard, Waveland and destroyed by Hurricane Camille. It was reported to have been a stopping-off point for the famed pirate Jean Lafite. Tradition says there was a underground tunnel entry to the building. (Card photo is courtesy of Charlene Dickinson of Bay St. Louis, who received it in a collection from her late grandmother, Mrs. Rose Ernst, a camp owner in Waveland for many years.) ## EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Wheeler versus Wicker . . .

The battle in Northeast Mississippi's First Congressional District has been anything but tame up to now, but wait'll the two survivors — Democrat Bill Wheeler and Republican Roger Wicker — go at it now 'til November.

Both of them already are wearing the scars of battle within their own party. That's not unusual for Democrats, but it is for Republicans.

Now the task is for each party to close ranks behind their man. That appears easier for the Republicans to do than the Democrats.

Wheeler, the 33-year-old state representative from Belmont, stunned most observers when he not only ran ahead of House Speaker Tim Ford in the June 7 Democratic primary, but then gave Ford, the pre-election favorite, a rather sound whipping in the June 28 runoff.

It is widely known around legislative circles that the ill feeling between Wheeler and Ford went further than their being adversaries for the Congressional seat being given up after 53 years by U.S. Rep. Jamie Whitten. Their personal dislike goes back to Wheeler's opposition to Ford's re-election as House speaker in 1992.

While Ford called and congratulated Wheeler after the runoff, he has not offered to endorse Wheeler, and it is not known if he will.

Wicker, 42, a two-term state senator from Tupelo, had been expected to be a top contender for the GOP nomination from the beginning of the race. But he encountered much more difficulty than anticipated in finally dispatching 27-year-old Grant Fox, of Houston, a newcomer on the scene.

Young Fox, who had just come back to Mississippi in January after resigning from a staff job with U.S. Sen. Thad Cochran in Washington, bounded past several better-known GOP figures into the runoff. Then, after giving Wicker a pretty good pummeling in the runoff campaign, Fox wound up carrying 14 of the 24 counties over Wicker in a narrow loss.

Two counties — Lee, where he lives, and his native Pontotoc, where his father, former Circuit Judge Fred Wicker, is well-liked — apparently saved Wicker from being upset by the frisky young Fox.

Ironically, Wicker, can't easily level his guns now at his Democratic opponent as a "tax and spend" liberal, since he has just come from being attacked on the same ground by Fox as a "tax-and-spend" politician who was "too liberal for Mississippi."

The key thrust used by Fox was that Wicker had voted for the 1-cent sales tax hike in the Legislature in 1992, and against overriding Gov. Forde's veto. Since Wheeler voted likewise, the tax issue will be moot when they face off.

Wheeler has already snatched away from Wicker one of the favorite Republican themes — the anti-abortion issue — by picking up the endorsement of both the Mississippi and national Right-To-Life organizations.

Some observers view Wheeler's successful campaign against the favored Ford as proof that the populist spirit still thrives in the hill-country of Northeast Mississippi.

Wheeler ran against Ford's ties to big business interests and his being a "big lawyer" from Tupelo, the biggest city in the district.

Indications are that Wheeler will now turn the guns on Wicker as another "big lawyer" from Tupelo, playing on the anti-Tupelo feelings that are known to exist around the district, and emphasizing that he is the only country boy in the race.

Wicker has already come out of the starting blocks charging that it is a classic contest between Wheeler as the "liberal" and himself as the "conservative." He's made it plain also that he will try to hang President Bill Clinton around Wheeler's neck.

The crafty Wheeler has a ready answer: "They'll have to come up with some other labels or they are going to have a tough time. I'm running as Bill Wheeler from Belmont, Mississippi, not as a national Democrat or for Bill Clinton."

Obviously, Wheeler, whose wife, Lisa, works for the Department of Commerce in the Clinton Administration, finds it strategically necessary to distance himself from Clinton. In fact, he's decided not to bring down any name Democrats to campaign for him.

But he expects some big name Republicans to be brought by Wicker.

One tip that Tim Ford has reportedly passed on to Wicker is: "Don't underestimate Bill Wheeler." Apparently that was a mistake he made.

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator Trent Lott

The crime bill's priorities

On my recent travels home I have found that uppermost on Mississippians' minds, still, is their concern about crime, drugs and the decline of values and order in our society.

We are at a critical time in this debate in Congress, and all the while, violent crime is getting worse. In Mississippi in recent weeks, we have seen students shot in separate incidents in Sardis and Philadelphia.

Teenagers kicked to death an elderly man in Jackson. A sheriff's deputy in Pearl River County was shot to death while in the line of duty. Crime is a problem all over America, including Mississippi.

The federal government cannot solve all the nation's crime problems. Bringing crime under control will only happen when an attitude of mind and a change of heart take place.

It will take a concerted effort on the part of men, women and families working in their neighborhoods and places of worship to re-emphasize that right and wrong matters; that individuals are responsible for their actions; and that retributions should be swift and sure for those who prey on the innocent.

That effort has to include education and outreach efforts like neighborhood watch and my TRIAD amendment to the crime bill which offers protections from crime for our senior citizens. Though not the sole role, the federal government clearly has a significant role to play in this effort.

Many hardened, repeat offenders are back on the streets because of Supreme Court decisions handed down in the '60s and '70s, aimed at protecting criminals instead of victims.

That court system has made it very tough for law enforcement officials to do their jobs. Far too often when violent felons commit a crime and are arrested, they get off on a technicality. Even if they are convicted of a heinous murder and receive a death sentence, they can appeal it endlessly for years.

The Senate dealt with some of the problems in the tough crime bill it passed last year. We need an end to the repeated appeals of death sentences and a "good faith" amendment to back our law enforcement people who see their hard, investigative work on a criminal case thrown out on a technicality.

We need truth-in-sentencing laws which say a convicted criminal must serve his full sentence. We need to apply the death penalty to more heinous crimes and make sure that when it is imposed, it is carried out.

And, we need the "three strikes and you're out" provision which I added to the crime bill to incarcerate for life those criminals convicted of three violent felonies.

We need stiffer penalties for all violent felons, more regional jails for both federal and state prisoners, and help for our local law enforcement offices. Finally, we must pay much more attention to the rights of victims and of society.

What we do not need is what lots of people in Washington are advocating — taking money from programs that punish criminals to fund another gun control/social reform program. Most incredible of all would be to turn the Senate bill into a package like the House of Representatives bill that includes quotas for the death penalty based on racial statistics.

Our criminal justice system allows for the death penalty based on the evidence of that case as weighed by judges and juries, not on some statistical analysis.

Instead of these social reforms, how about the reinstatement of some old ideas like requiring criminals to work for their keep and direct the income they receive to victims of their crimes.

The primary objective of the criminal law is public safety; and those convicted of serious offenses must be jailed swiftly, surely, and long enough to assure public safety.

There is a rising tide of concern on the part of the American people to get our priorities straight in the fight to get crime under control. We must take positive action now.

Moore selected outstanding Attorney General

Mississippi Attorney General Mike Moore received the coveted Wyman Memorial Award from the National Association of Attorneys General June 24 in San Antonio, Texas.

The award was presented to Moore at an evening ceremony by the president of the National Association of Attorneys General, Charles Burson of Tennessee.

Moore was selected by his peers for this special recognition. Nominations for the award were received from across the nation. Moore is the first-ever Mississippi attorney general to receive this distinguished award.

The Wyman Memorial Award, which is given each year at the association's summer meeting, was instituted by a gift made by former New Hampshire Attorney General Louis Wyman in memory of his father.

It is awarded each year to the attorney general who, through distinguished achievement, has done the most to enhance the stature of the Office of the Attorney General and to advance the objectives of the National Association of Attorneys General.

Moore's efforts on behalf of the children and elderly and in fighting crime and drugs played a direct role in his receiving the award.

Moore has served as chairman of the National Association of Attorneys General Criminal Law Committee, and is now serving his second term on the Criminal Justice Council of the American Bar Association, representing all other attorneys general in America.

He was appointed by President Bush to the Presidential Commission on Measured Responses to Achieve a Drug-

Free America by 1995 and now chairs the National Alliance, which the commission has become.

Attorney General Moore stated, "While I am honored to have received this award, I am even more pleased that this is another first place finish for the state of Mississippi."

Louisiana Attorney General Richard Ieyoub said, "I think Mike Moore is very deserving of the Wyman Memorial Award because I know how hard he has worked to represent the people of Mississippi. No one deserved it more."

Planning retirement a breeze

To make the most of your golden years, you should lay the groundwork while you're in your prime, advises a Mississippi State University professor of counselor education. According to Dr. Warren Housley, several phases of retired life require careful planning.

Finances. Financial planning may be the single most important element of preparing for retirement. While you're almost never too young to think about your long-term financial future, everyone should have begun planning by age 40.

Knowing that you will have enough money to live comfortably reduces pressure when retirement day arrives.

Health. You can never start taking care of your body too early, but you especially need to watch your health in your 30s and 40s. You should have physical examinations regularly, and pay close attention to your weight and cholesterol level. Psychological planning. Retirement often brings reflection and evaluation, Housley says. "You will want to have feelings of significance and accomplishment."

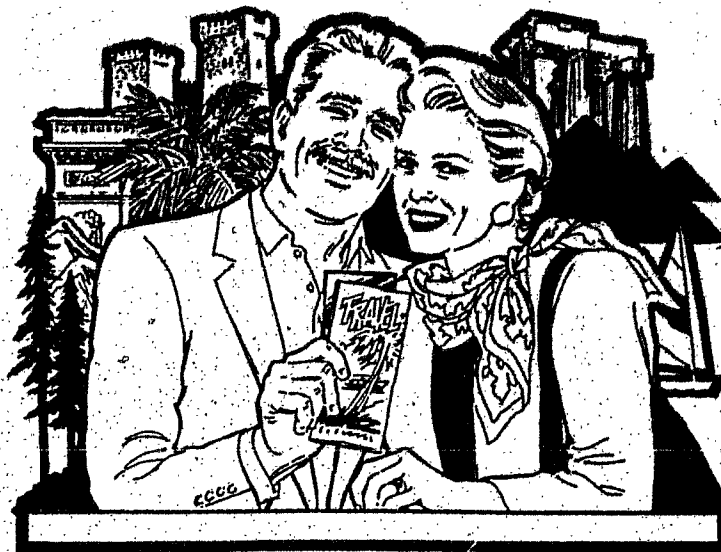

The best way to assuring yourself that you will have those feelings is by living your life to the fullest. "You will want to be proud you've done the things you've done."

Time management. If you ever wanted some free time, you're going to get it when you retire.

"You are going to have so much free time that you will often become bored," Housley cautions. "Find something to do so that you do not become stagnant."

Before you retire, you should develop interests in some type of activity, whether it's golf or stamp collecting.

Important advice about planning. You must be proactive — thinking and planning ahead, and developing a scheme for your life. Housley says you must plan to retire to something, rather than from something. Effective planning can help accomplish your goals.

HANCOCK COUNTY Tourism & Gaming ASSOCIATION

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE BAY ST. LOUIS PLANNING & ZONING COMMISSION AND THE CITIZENS OF BAY ST. LOUIS

We, the Board of Directors of the Hancock County Tourism & Gaming Association (T&G), in our continuing effort to support economic growth within our community, wish to urge the Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission and the City Council of the City of Bay St. Louis, to approve the request for a special exemption allowing the operation of a bed & breakfast facility at the Cedar Haven site, 1360 North Beach Boulevard.

The location of the Cedar Haven establishment as it currently exists offers ample acreage so as not to be intrusive to neighboring properties. And, the exclusive nature of the operation as proposed by Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Woodrick, developers of the property, provides not only additional needed lodging facilities, but also offers yet another unique experience to visitors to our beautiful City of Bay St. Louis - A Place Apart!

Regrettably, opposition to development and progress continues to exist among some within our community who are opposed to such growth and change. The Hancock Tourism & Gaming Association, however, continues its commitment to strive for the economic well-being of all Hancock Countians and supports well-planned growth such as this proposed bed & breakfast facility. Denial of this special exemption request - not to be confused with a request for rezoning - by the Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission or the City Council of the City of Bay St. Louis would unquestionably have the effect of sending a negative message to potential investors in our community, thereby impeding further progress of the area.

On behalf of the more than 2100 members of the Hancock County Tourism & Gaming Association, we respectfully ask that approval of this request be granted.

With warmest regards,

Use patience to train cats

By Dr. Wynn Jones
Veterinarian
MSU College of Veterinary Medicine

"I have a 2-year-old cat that has lived indoors since she was born. I am moving to a more rural area soon where my cat will be able to spend time outside. I am concerned about her making the adjustment to the outdoors. A friend suggested using a leash on my cat when we go outside in our new neighborhood. I have never seen a cat on a leash, and I wonder if this may be a solution?"

Many cats have been trained to walk on a leash. While most self-respecting cats will not heel dutifully like their canine counterparts, they can be trained to follow your pace.

Training a cat to walk on a leash requires patience, and should be practiced inside before attempting outdoors.

The first thing you will need is a figure-eight harness, not a collar. It is safer, and the cat cannot slip out of it, or if she escapes, she cannot get caught and hanged.

Use the lightest weight leash you can find, and do not use a chain, which is far too heavy for a cat. You do not want the lead to be too long — about six to 10 feet will do.

Get your cat used to the harness and lead before you attempt to walk her. Let your cat sniff it and wear it around the house without the lead for a week or two.

Next, attach the lead to the harness, but do not hold the other end in your hand. Just let the cat pull it around for a while. Be sure to praise your cat and give her a treat for wearing the harness.

Watch out for electronic bites

Investment fraud and abuse have come to the personal computer, so home techies beware!

That's the warning from the Mississippi Secretary of State's Securities Division where investment complaints are investigated.

You are a potential victim if you use the fast-growing world of commercial computer bulletin board services, such as Prodigy, Compuserve and America Online and the informal web of computer networks that make up the Internet, warned Secretary of State Dick Molpus.

Already at risk: an estimated 20,000 Mississippians who subscribe to commercial online services, where a variety of illegal and abusive investment schemes are flourishing, including stock manipulation, pyramid schemes and Ponzi scams.

Molpus said his Securities Division has joined with the North American Securities Administrators Association and other state regulators around the U.S. in issuing the urgent public warning about the growing danger posed by the investment scams and schemes in "cyberspace."

"Unwary Mississippians who take the wrong turn on the information superhighway will end up getting cleaned out by high-tech schemers," warned Susan A. Shands, assistant secretary of state for securities.

"It is vitally important that the many potential victims here become aware of this new problem, arm themselves with self-defense tactics, and how that they can turn to our office for help if they need it."

Shands said her office is issuing a special investor bulletin outlining steps that small investors can take to protect themselves from this new electronic danger.

- Don't expect to get rich quick in "cyberspace."
- Don't assume your online services police investment bulletin boards.
- Don't buy thinly-traded, little-known stocks strictly on the basis of online hype. These stocks are most susceptible to manipulation. Always take the time to do your own research using reputable print and database resources.
- Don't act on the advice of a person who hides his or her identity. Many computer bulletin board services allow people to use aliases and nicknames. You may end up dealing with an undisclosed broker, investor or company insider who has an interest in driving up the price of a stock through false information or baseless speculation that is difficult or impossible to disprove.
- Don't get misled by claims made about "inside information" including impending news release, pending contract announcements and new products.
- Don't assume just because some say they have checked out something, that they have done so.
- Don't forget to make sure first that an investment opportunity and the person promoting it are properly registered with the Mississippi Secretary of State's Office. Failure by an issuer or broker to follow state requirements here is often a major "red flag" of investments scams.
- Don't post your name address or phone number online. Protect your privacy online! You could be opening yourself to possible harassment or to being put on a "sucker list" by con artists for e-mail, regular mail, or boiler-room telemarketing operations.

Shands also reminded online service users to contact the Securities Division at 601-359-6364 if they have been victimized or think they have spotted a scam.

Comments or information also may be mailed to the Securities Division, Secretary of State's Office, P.O. Box 136, Jackson, MS 39205.

Casino Magic golf course under review

Plans for an 18-hole golf course at Casino Magic are under review by the Army Corps of Engineers.

The public has until July 23 to comment on the proposal.

Under the plan, Casino Magic would fill 7.3 acres of pine flatwood wetlands to build its course next to the casino.

The development includes a clubhouse, driving range and golf academy, but is scaled down from an 27-hole complex originally planned.

To offset loss of the wetlands area, Casino Magic plans to create seven lakes on property next to the fairways, and five acres of additional pine flatwoods habitat. Officials say the casino also plans to "enhance" five acres of existing low quality pine flatwoods by planting additional vegetation.

The plan also calls for removing some shrub wetland species to enhance the opportunity for tidal marshes to grow in a transition zone between uplands and tidal marsh.

North Bay Elementary awarded grant

North Bay Elementary has recently been awarded a grant totaling $20,000 for its three nongraded multiage classes. The money will be used to purchase classroom materials, enhance technology, provide training, and finance research. State legislators provided these funds through the education bill at the end of the 1994 session.

Purpose of the money was to provide an incentive for the planning and implementation of nongraded multiage programs. Competitive grants were received by the State Department of Education in May and were awarded in mid-June.

In August of 1993, the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District authorized the principal and a team of teachers to pilot a non-graded program at North Bay. Due to the success of this past year, nongraded multiage classrooms will once again be available for students entering the first, second or third grades in August 1994.

Students are admitted to the program by parent request. Strengths in traditional and nongraded programs are recognized by the staff at North Bay and both styles are offered.

Each classroom is self-contained with one teacher and one assistant. Regular and special education teachers jointly plan instruction to meet the needs of all special education students in the nongraded program.

Parents are invited to the school for private conferences each term during which they receive their child's report packet that contains student generated portfolios, teacher narratives, checklists and parent/student surveys.

Continuous progress is made possible in a multiage classroom. Ideally, a child enters this program and remains with the same teacher for a three-year period. This creates a family atmosphere, enabling the teacher to become familiar with each child and to nurture a positive working relationship with the parents.

It is the philosophy of North Bay's nongraded program that children who are accepted wherever they are as learners, and who are given a chance to progress at their own rates, will naturally desire to be successful. They, therefore, will be successful. This style of teaching/learning gives children the benefit of a no-gaps education.

The Private Industry Council ... Who Are We?

"Our PIC's work is most important because we help disadvantaged people empower themselves to take advantage of employment opportunities, which will allow them to begin living an independent, fulfilling life based on THEIR dreams."

— Robert Bass

The Private Industry Council (PIC) is comprised of business and community leaders in a Service Delivery Area including Harrison, Hancock, Jackson, George and Stone Counties. The PIC's purpose is to help eligible unsubsidized employment. Much of the training is provided through Gulf Coast and Pearl River Community Colleges, vocational schools and private training facilities. The PIC pays the cost of tuition, books and supplies during the training period.

A majority of the 35 member council and its Chairman must be representative of business and industry in the area. The PIC's current Chairman is Robert Bass, CPA, Moore & Powell. Bass has been a Council member since November 1989, and PICK Chairman since 1992. The PIC accomplishes its objectives in cooperation with the business community through federal grants authorized by the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA). Gulf Coast Business Services Corporation acts as the administrative entity for the PIC.

BREWER'S WORLD

By Jimmie Brewer

Wake up, wake up, the British are coming! Whoops, wrong century. How's this? Wake up, wake up, the O.J. media blitz is coming.

Holy macaroni, have you folks been watching the real-life mini-series on that "juicy" trial going on in L.A.? (Sorry, I couldn't resist.)

I must admit I'm hopelessly addicted to the whole ordeal. I can't seem to get enough! The remote control has become an extension of my right arm. The TV now looks like one of those casino beacon lights switching from channel to channel trying to drink in every detail.

I'm most impressed with the attorneys. Where in the world did that Shapiro dude come from? If there was ever a guy born to be an attorney, it would be Robert Shapiro.

Did'y all see the way he cross examined those police detectives? These cops had a combined 50 years of experience, and he had them looking like school crossing guards. He had me so scared — I almost admitted to the murders. You reckon those detectives are beefing up a bit on police procedures?

I'll tell you one thing, I'd hate for "Brutal Bob" to be my boss during employer appraisal time. I can see the scenario now: Shapiro: "Would you state your name and experience for the record please."

Brewer: "Uhh um, I'm circulation manager, part-time columnist, and I worked for one hour as a press helper."

Shapiro: "Are you familiar with the Echo's employee manual in regards to safe operation of your circulation computer?"

Brewer: "Ahh, yeah!"

Shapiro: "Would you consider it your responsibility to comply with the regulations contained in that manual?"

Brewer: "Umm, yes sir."

Shapiro: "Are you aware of the regulation in that manual that states there should be no smoking, drinking or eating near the computer?"

Brewer: "Uhh, kinda."

Shapiro: "Mr. Brewer, do you own a badly stained blue coffee cup?"

Brewer: "Ummm, yeah."

Shapiro: "Could you tell me, sir, what kind of cigarettes you smoke?"

Courtroom antics

Brewer: "Ahh, Salems, sir."

Shapiro: "Have you consumed any cheddar cheese on wheat crackers in the last 24 hours?"

Brewer: "Uhh, probably, but I can't recall."

Shapiro: "To your knowledge, Mr. Brewer, does anyone else in your office drink out of a stained coffee cup?"

Brewer: "No sir."

Shapiro: "To your knowledge, sir, does anyone else in your office smoke Salem cigarettes?"

Brewer: "Nope."

Shapiro: "Mr. Brewer, does anyone in your office eat cheddar cheese on wheat crackers?"

Brewer: "Not to my knowledge, sir."

Shapiro: "Were you operating the computer yesterday evening?"

Brewer: "Uhh, yes sir."

Shapiro: "To your knowledge, did anyone else operate that computer last evening?"

Brewer: "Uh, no sir."

Shapiro: "Then can you tell me sir, how it is that I found cracker crumbs on the key board, a badly stained coffee cup on top of the monitor and an ash tray containing two Salem cigarette butts on the printer?"

Brewer: (sobbing uncontrollably) "I admit it. I'm guilty!"

And hey, how about these attorneys' ability at taking recess. I mean, they grill a poor helpless witness for a few minutes and then request a brief recess. That's the part of the job I'm qualified for. Recess was always my best subject.

Praise for do-gooders this week goes out to all those attorneys and judges who stand up and defend the Bill of Rights and our Constitution.

All right, dudes and dudettes, it's your party, go out and whoop it up.

Jourdan River boaters celebrate

STORY AND PHOTOS
BY SHARON K. SAUCIER

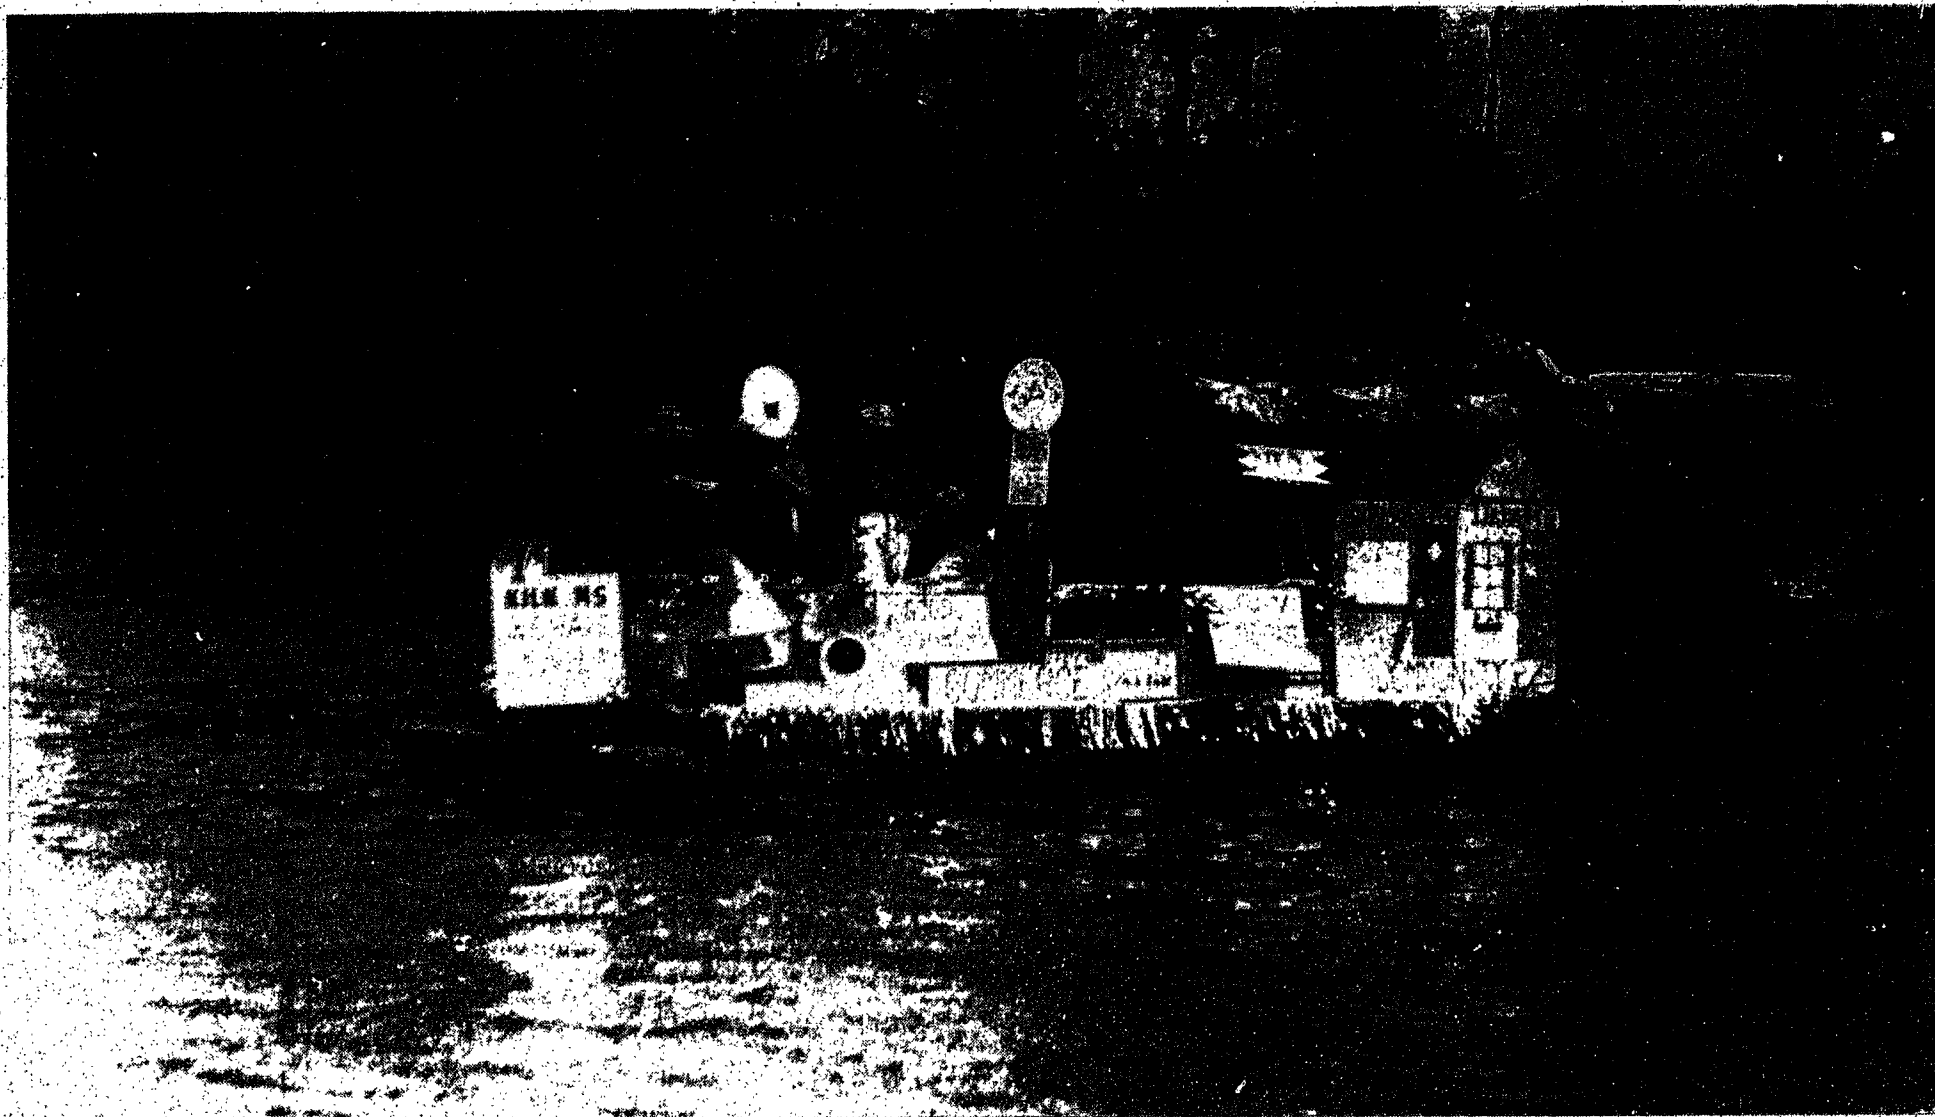

The Jourdan River Property Owners Association sponsored its annual boat parade Saturday, July 2 that started at the bridge on Miss. Hwy. 603 and ran to the end of the subdivision.

Hundreds of people turned out for the annual event in which 16 boats participated.

"We really had good participation from members this year. We were really pleased with the amount of entries and hope that it is even better next year," Becky Melancon, co-chair of the owners association's entertainment committee, said.

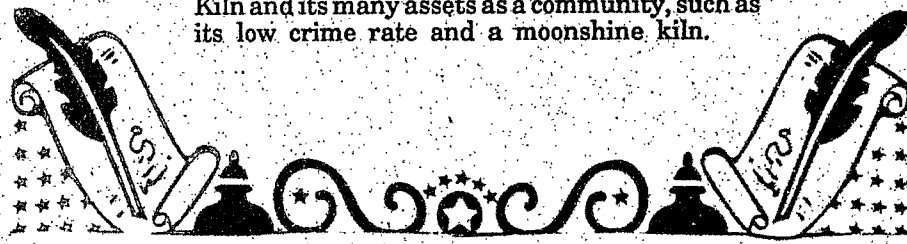

There was an atmosphere of friendship and fellowship throughout the entire day, even Mother Nature cooperated and provided the group with a beautifully sunny day and a slight breeze.

Following the parade many individuals returned to their skiing, boat riding, cooking on the grill, socializing and enjoying the Independence Day weekend.

First place pontoon

The first place winner in the pontoon division was captained by L.E. Rockwell and depicted Kiln and its many assets as a community, such as its low crime rate and a moonshine kiln.

First place pleasure craft

First place pleasure craft was captained by Stoney Dossett, center, and the hula was done by,

Parade Judges

ney Cono Caranna were the judges for the Fourth of July Boat Parade in Jourdan River Shores sponsored by the Property Owners Association.

First place small craft

First place small craft went to Paul Dybas, whose Sea Doo was adorned with American flags.

Washington Bank to join with Hancock

Hancock Bank of Louisiana and Washington Bank & Trust Company of Franklinton, La. announce merger plans, adding $76 million in deposits and $88.5 million in assets to the Louisiana subsidiary of Hancock Holding Company. The plan was approved by the boards of directors of both companies.

Washington Bank & Trust, founded in 1914, operates six offices in Washington Parish, which lies adjacent to the Louisiana-Mississippi state line. After the merger the bank will continue to operate under the name Washington Bank.

Leo W. Seal Jr., president and chief executive officer of Hancock Holding Company, commenting on the benefits of the merger, said, "This move allows us to diversify our markets, and fills in the distance between our Mississippi bank and our current operations in Baton Rouge. Many of Washington Bank's customers are already Hancock Bank customers, too."

Hancock Bank MS has five full-service offices in Pearl River County, Miss., which is adjacent to Washington Parish, La.

The merger is subject to approval by Washington Bancorp shareholders and appropriate regulatory agencies. Completion is expected by the end of 1994.

Washington Bancorp shareholders will receive Hancock Holding Company common stock qualifying as a tax-free pooling of interest valued at approximately $15 million.

Through its banks in Mississippi and Louisiana, Hancock Holding Company operates 58 banking offices and 86 automated teller machines.

Hancock Bank is listed by Veribanc, Inc. as one of the strongest, safest financial institutions in the United States.

The company's common stock is traded on the NASDAQ National Market under the symbol HBHC and is found in the NASDAQ newspaper quotations under the abbreviation HancHd.

Robert S. Travers

Robert Travers selected to board

Robert S. Travers of Bay St. Louis has been appointed to CTA's board of commissioners. Travers, a Coast resident for 16 years, is the owner of Simply Southern Limited in Bay St. Louis. He also serves on the boards of the Bay St. Louis Development Foundation and the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre.

Travers is the first commissioner to represent the city of Bay St. Louis, which had not had bus service for several years.

CTA began new service in Bay St. Louis last year after the city purchased a trolley and a 21 passenger bus.

A new bus route serving downtown shopping centers and human service agencies began in April.

Jubilee announces its new promotions

Bayou Caddy's Jubilee Casino announces that Carole Martin has been promoted to director of human resources and Karla Andress to human resources manager.

"Human resources is an essential part of our day to day operations, and we are pleased we were able to draw from a deep pool of talent within our organization," said Jon Turner, vice president of administration for Bayou Caddy's Jubilee Casino.

Martin, a Pearlinton native, will be responsible for planning and directing the activities of the human resources department. She recently served as benefits manager for Bayou Caddy's Jubilee Casino.

Andress, who resides in Long Beach, will direct the employment process and supervise the wage and salary process. Prior to her advancement, Andress served as employment manager for Bayou Caddy's Jubilee Casino.

Residents attain licenses

Real estate license examinations were held June 13 in Jackson for persons desiring to enter the field of real estate sales, rentals and other related real estate activities.

Thirty individuals applied for the brokers license and 127 for the salespersons license. Eighty percent sitting for the brokers examination successfully completed the requirements and will now become licensed real estate brokers. Seventy-four percent of those sitting for the salespersons examination successfully completed the requirements and will now be awarded the salespersons license.

The following local individuals have been issued licenses: Brokers: George McCook of Diamondhead.

Salespersons: Rosalind Landrum, David E. Miller, Theresa M. Ryan and Albert R. Saucier, all of Bay St. Louis, and Billie Smith of Diamondhead.

Diamondhead among Top 21

Parents' pressure can spoil the fun of play

By Dr. Ann Jarratt
4-H Youth Development Specialist
Cooperative Extension Service

"I've always looked forward to summer and playing baseball on a Parks and Recreation team until now. Lately, I dread the thought of practice and hate the games even more."

"The problem is the coach and some of the parents who take all the fun out of it. They yell and scream and make you feel like you've let down the nation if you make a mistake."

"The more they yell, the more nervous I become, and the more errors I make. I'm thinking about quitting the team because it's no fun anymore. Can anything be done?"

I know what you mean. Sometimes parents act like the fate of the universe rides on a T-ball game. What a shame to take the fun out of play!

Try talking to your coach privately and explain how yelling criticism at you only makes you nervous and more likely to make mistakes.

Assure the coach that you'll try your best to remember and carry out the techniques you've been taught without the need for yelling.

If that doesn't work, ask your parents to talk with the coach. I believe men and women who spend time working with young people do have the best interests of the youth in mind.

Unfortunately, sometimes they get so caught up in the "win-at-all-costs" mentality that they forget the point of the game—to have fun and develop athletic and social skills in young people.

The rude parents in the stands are another story. My guess is they are trying to relieve their youth through their child, and they want to be the parent of a star.

Personally, I would like to see them respectfully escorted from the stands and asked to wait in a "time out" place until they could show good sportsmanship for the children on the team.

"I have a major problem, and my parents are making it worse. I recently got my first DUI (driving under the influence) citation, and my parents have taken away my car keys."

"I am making payments on and putting gas in the car. To make matters worse, I don't have transportation to the job that helps me make those payments. How can they take away keys to the car I bought? The whole thing stinks."

This definitely is a rotten situation. It's a situation that you're totally responsible for, and you are having to suffer the consequences.

TEEN TALK

Drinking is illegal for people under the age of 21, largely because their judgement is not always as sound as it should be. Certainly, people over 21 use poor judgement from time to time as well.

There are a few things you didn't mention. Who paid the down payment on the car or co-signed for it? Who pays for the car insurance? Who pays for the roof over your head, your food, laundry services, health insurance and your clothing?

If your answer to any of these is your parents, then they can take away your keys. In fact, your parents actually can have your driver's license revoked if you are under 17.

Parents (who co-signed for you when you got your driver's license) are held liable for your driving actions until you are 17.

Another reason more important than all the rest is that they love you and don't want you to kill yourself or someone else by being irresponsible and drinking and driving.

You used poor judgement at least once, maybe time without the privilege of driving will make you think twice in the future.

If you have questions concerning your teenage years, write Dr. Ann Jarratt, 4-H youth development specialist, Box 9641, Mississippi State, MS 39762.

Camp Discovery

Nicole Rygiel, from Bay St. Louis, took part in the June 19-23 basic camp session of Camp Discovery: An Adventure in Space Science at Northwestern State University in Natchitoches, La. During the week-long camp, students took part in a variety of activities designed to create interest in math and science. Camp Discovery has four levels: day camp, basic, advanced and high school. Those in the basic, advanced and high school camps take part in a simulated space mission that lets them get a feel for the life of an astronaut. An added feature this year is the elderhostel camp, a week long session for grandparents and their grandchildren.

Mexican real estate network to help Latter & Blum

The recent launch of an independent Mexican broker network will assist Latter & Blum Inc./Realtors, the Homequity Relocation Center (HRC) in the Gulf South, to enhance its real estate services throughout North America.

"In an industry that is seeing increasing international business, this move will expand our ability to assist investors, transferring families and retirees with their cross border real estate needs," said Nancy Harman, director of Relocation and Corporate Services with Latter & Blum.

Latter & Blum, an award-winning member of North America's leading broker-to-broker network, maintains its HRC status by meeting rigorous quality control and client satisfaction standards.

Its selection was made after extensive reviews of all real estate companies in the market with regard to ranking and commitment to excellence.

While Latter & Blum is the "No. 1 real estate company in the Gulf South," the establishment of a Mexican network presents cross-border business opportunities for the firm in concert with its Canadian/U.S. counterparts.

Last year, on behalf of its 1,100 corporate and government clients, Wilton, Connecticut-based PHH Homequity assisted more than 40,000 transferring families and managed in excess of $5 billion in residential sales.

Based in Mexico City, the new enterprise, PHH-Network Services S.A. de C.V. will recruit, train and manage the PHH Centros de Servicios Inmobiliarios (Real Estate Center) Network of market-dominant firms.

W. Bruce Wallin, PHH Network senior vice-president and general manager said, "NAFTA enables us to respond directly to the need for enhanced operating methods and expanded training in the Mexican real estate practice. The current state-of-the-industry there presents an opportunity to elevate professional standards," adding, "Our goal is to recruit 'Best In Class' affiliates throughout the country to offer the highest quality real estate services to Mexican consumers as well as to cross border transferees."

The PHH Homequity Relocation Centers Network is composed of more than 54,000 professionals in 2,000 offices serving in excess of 490 markets. Last year, the combined listing and sales volume of the HRC Network exceeded $80 billion.

PHH Homequity, the world's largest relocation firm, serving 45 countries, is an operating unit of PHH Corporation (NYSE: PHH).

Don't throw that old magazine away: recycle

Stacks of old magazines lying around the house? What about half-used cans of paint or barely touched containers of pesticides? Don't throw them away — recycle them.

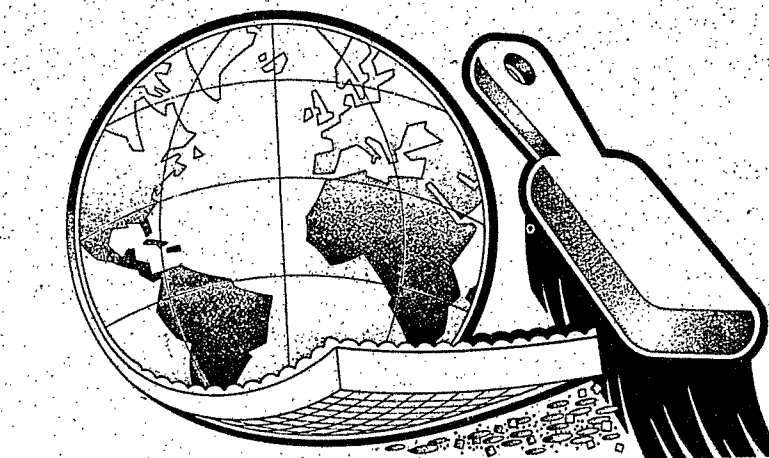

June Carpenter of the Mississippi Technical Assistance Program based at Mississippi State University has some suggestions for dealing with unwanted and sometimes hazardous wastes.

"First of all, if possible, buy just what you need of an item," she says. If you have leftover, though, here are some tips.

Magazines. Once you're through perusing them, don't toss them in the nearest garbage can. Donate them to hospitals, nursing homes or day cares.

Pesticides. If you have to buy an unusually large quantity of a pesticide or herbicide, why not make it a community affair and let the neighborhood help purchase the substance for community use?

Paint. If you have a good bit of paint left over, why not donate it to Habitat for Humanity, a volunteer group that builds homes for less fortunate people. Or, if the paint is a latex, simply open the can and let the paint dry out before throwing it out.

Enamel or oil-based paint is a little more troublesome,

Carpenter cautions. It should be taken to a hazardous-waste disposal site, especially if it's the old, lead-based variety.

For more information on household hazards or recycling methods, contact (601) 325-2171 or 325-8069.

Consider health at grilling time

FASTER, EASIER, HEALTHIER — Many people turn to grilling as an alternative cooking method, not only for its health benefits, but also for its convenience. When basic food safety considerations are made, grilling is a much healthier way to prepare foods as the fat drips away from the meat while cooking," said Dr. Barbara McLaurin, extension human nutrition specialist at Mississippi State University.

"The health benefit increases when meats that already are low fat are grilled, such as chicken, fish and lean cuts of beef and pork."

McLaurin said health factors apply to more than just low fat. Healthy means free of food poisoning bacteria. Incidents of food-borne illness are on the rise, especially when choosing outdoor cooking methods, is the best way to avoid an unwanted "bug."

"Cross contamination is one of the most common mistakes people make when cooking," McLaurin said. "Cooked meat should never touch an uncleaned plate, cutting board or tray that raw meat has touched."

Cross contamination also can occur when using marinades.

"If you want to make a dip for cooked food from your marinade, reserve a separate portion for dipping," McLaurin said. "Don't re-use any of the marinade used on the raw meat. It could contain bacteria."

McLaurin said to be careful with forks and brushes used on raw meat. Wash utensils before using them again with cooked food.

Cook-outs at a park or any place away from refrigeration require advance food safety planning.

"It is critically important to keep perishable foods cold, especially in hot weather. Bacteria can grow on raw or cooked foods rapidly at warm temperatures to levels that can cause food poisoning," McLaurin said.

"Use an insulated cooler when transporting perishables. Start with cold food when possible and pack a cold source — like ice or frozen blue ice jells."

Put the cooler in the shade and keep the lid closed. Hamburger patties and hot dogs can be frozen ahead of time and will thaw sufficiently by cooking time. Grilling partially frozen meat is acceptable.

Two health factors to consider when grilling are the importance of cooking completely and of not charring the meat.

"When cooking ground beef and poultry, the juices should run clear and the meat should not be pink. Fish is done when you can flake the meat with a fork," McLaurin said.

Charred meat and smoke from fat dripping on coals has been linked to cancer in some studies," she said. "To be on the safe side, remove any visible fat which will reduce flame-ups and raise the level of the grill so the food is further from the heat. Remove any charred portion if it occurs."

The nutritionist said moderate amounts should reduce any risks. For people who eat grilled food more than several times a week, precook the meat or poultry immediately before grilling so it is not on the grill as long.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

Summer's bounty of fresh fruit of all sorts drew the attention — and the appetite — at our area supermarkets and farmer's markets as well as at roadside stands, and at good prices, too. Accordingly, my menus these steamy days are filled with fresh fruits.

Fruits are delicious accents to main dishes, as well as to salads and desserts, from the simplest to the most elegant concoction.

I often accent pork and ham and chicken dishes with fruit, also shrimp and fish dishes. We all know and appreciate the tang which fresh lemons lend, for example.

The jumbo canteloupes make excellent containers for salads and desserts of all sorts. Try peach ice cream heaped into a cantaloupe half, for instance, with sliced peaches atop. Or pile chicken or shrimp salad into the cantaloupe.

If you scoop up one of the smoked picnics at special prices just now, remember that fruit combines well with ham dishes. I usually ask the butcher to cut the ham in half, saving one half for later use.

Instead of the usual sliced pineapple and juice glaze, try halved or sliced peaches; you'll enjoy the change of flavor. Or, make a mixed fruit salad, taking advantage of the variety available:

MIXED FRUIT SALAD

- 1 medium cantaloupe, halved, peeled and seeded, sliced
- 3 medium oranges, peeled and cut into 1/2-inch cubes

2 medium bananas, peeled, sliced and sprinkled with 2 tsp. lemon juice to prevent darkening.

1 cup sliced strawberries

1 cup seedless grapes, green or flame, or combination

1/4 cup plain low-fat yogurt

1/3 cup orange juice

1 Tbsp. honey

1 1/2 tsp. grated orange rind

1 Tbsp. minced fresh mint

Arrange the cantaloupe, oranges, bananas, strawberries and grapes attractively on a platter; cover with plastic wrap and chill in the refrigerator until ready to serve.

In small bowl, whisk together the yogurt, orange juice, honey, orange rind and mint. Transfer to a small pitcher and chill until ready to serve. Pass dressing separately. (Four servings) —from Reader's Digest "Great Recipes for Good Cooking" cookbook.

I like to scatter fresh blueberries atop this salad also, and I often add watermelon cubes or balls to the other fruit.

***
Tomatoes, corn, fresh mushrooms and other vegetables are good buys this week. Whole beef briskets, untrimmed, and whole rump roasts, both 10 and 12 pounds average, are also stellar choices — and the butcher will custom-cut the latter without charge. Choose from these or other bargains at the meat counter; you'll be glad that you did.

money goes and then determine if that's the way you want to spend it.

Sometimes you may want to eliminate the little things in order to have more to spend for more important things.

If you write down your expenses, you also will have documentation for your parents about your need for more money.

Don't forget the possibility of earning some extra money through a part- or full-time job or a home-based business you might start.

You might have a friend with similar needs and interests who could be a partner in a money-making venture.

***
"My boyfriend is going to work out of town for the summer, and he has asked me not to date anyone while he's gone. I agreed, but now I'm thinking how boring summer can be."

"I don't think I want to sit home all summer, but I don't want to feel guilty for going back on my word. What should I do?"

One of the rights each of us has is to make decisions and to change our minds. You seem to have changed your mind. He has the same right to change his mind.

Would you want him to be up front with you if he decided to date while he's away? I would guess you wouldn't want him to sneak around and not tell you.

Your situation is different than his since people who know you both certainly would tell him that you were dating. Sneaking around probably wouldn't be an option even if you wanted it to be.

If he's in another town, chances are good that no one would know (or care) who he was dating back home.

It seems to me that honesty would be the best policy.

TEEN TALK

By Dr. Ann Jarratt,
4-H Youth Development Specialist
Cooperative Extension Service

"I don't have the spending money that many other kids seem to have. I have a small allowance and when it's gone, it's gone."

"I never seem to have enough to do what I want. I hate feeling cheap when I can't do things with other kids. What can I do?"

Nobody likes to feel cheap! You want to be able to do the things your friends are doing and do it with your own resources. Everyone has probably been through the same thing you're describing at some time.

If you could show your parents that you sometimes need more money for special occasions, could they afford to help you out?

Some parents' income is budgeted to the last cent and they couldn't come up with more money no matter how much they wanted to or how persuasively you argued for more.

Some parents could afford more if you showed them you have a genuine need and not just excessive wants.

Do you keep up with where your money goes? I have tried it a few times, and it's scary. You buy a pack of gum here, a pay telephone call there, a magazine or two and you've shot $5 before you can turn around — and that's just little, inexpensive stuff.

When you add in a movie and fast food snack, you almost need a calculator to add it all up.

The point of keeping up with every purchase for a week is to help you figure out where your

Math recognition

Some of the OLA students who received recognition in math were left to right, Emily Pella, freshman, Algebra I; Margaret Harris, 8th grade, Algebra I; Marie Cuevas, 8th grade, pre-algebra and Julie Sellier, 7th grade, 7th grade math.

Water features enhance gardens
By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service
There's hardly a garden center or major building supply store that isn't offering several different shapes of preformed, heavy plastic or fiberglass, water gardens.
Perennial flower gardens are still big, but more gardeners are adding garden water features to their landscapes. New interest in water gardens is traceable to more companies selling water plants and pond equipment and supplies.
A pond provides opportunities for improving the wildlife habitat of a yard. With water available you'll see more birds and other wildlife.
Your garden toads will be happier with a place to lay their eggs, and you'll have more toads to eat insects and slugs. You'll have a ready supply of tadpoles, and the kids will love it.
Dragon flies will be attracted to the pond to lay their eggs and to feed on other insects. With bog-type plants growing around the edge, you'll have good habitat for tree frogs.
Water lilies and bog plants will add another whole group of plants to your garden.
There is something special about a water feature in the garden. Sometimes just a few square feet of water surface area is all you need. The sound of trickling or splashing water provides a soothing or calming effect and on a hot evening can make the temperature seem several degrees cooler.
Felder Rushing has a small pond in his Jackson front yard and says that the sound of trickling water blocks out neighbor-hood noise and the sound of passing traffic.
Some pools are only 14 inches deep and hold about 65 gallons of water. The larger ones, though no deeper than 18 inches, hold more than 500 gal-lons. You can design your own pool and purchase a thick, flexible poly liner for it.
Whether you select the rigid, preformed liner or the flexible poly liner, you have to dig a hole. Felder Rushing suggests dig-ging half a hole and piling the soil around the hole to add to the hole's depth and to keep sur-face water from running into the pool.
Select a location that receives no less than five hours of sun. Remove all rocks and sharp objects from the hole that might pierce the pool liner.
For a preformed pool, cover the bottom of the hole with an inch or more of sand to make a level footing.
Set the liner in the ground so the rim is at ground level. As you fill in the soil around the outside of the pool, fill the pool with water to equalize the pres-sure on the interior and exterior of the pool.
The flexible pool liner requires more work to install since the preparation of the hole is more complex. Not only must the site be level, but the sides should slope inward at about a 75 degree angle as you dig the hole. You must leave soil in areas around the perimeter where you want shelves for shallow areas.
These considerations are already a part of the rigid pool lines. You also must line the entire excavation with moist sand or some other type of cush-ioning material to protect the flexible liner. With the liner in place, the pool is slowly filled while adjustments are made in fitting the liner to the hole.
Once the pool is filled, the decorative edging in place, the recirculating pump and foun-tain operational, and the plants placed, you are ready to intro-duce the fish and sit back and enjoy your new water garden. There is no need to cure the pool as is necessary with concrete.

Extra calcium may help stem osteoporosis
By Judy McBride
The best way to prevent osteoporosis, health profes-sionals agree, is to achieve the high-est bone mass possible in youth through adequate exercise and calcium intake.
That's why the recommended dietary allowances call for girls to increase calcium intake from 800 to 1,200 milligrams daily between ages 11 and 25.
Now U.S. Department of Agriculture findings suggest that the increase should begin and end at earlier ages. In a study of girls age 5 through 16, "most bone forming activity occurred in the years just before and just after the start of puber-ty," says study leader Steven A. Abrams, a pediatrician at USDA's Children's Nutrition Research Center in Houston funded by the Agricultural Research Service.
In U.S. girls, Abrams says, the first signs of puberty usu-ally begin between age 8 and 11, the average being around 10. Menstruation begins two to three years later, with age 12 1/2 being average.
Abrams believes "there's no reason to think you can't start to emphasize calcium intake around age 6. The primary pre-vention of osteoporosis begin before puberty."
His results also show a rapid drop in bone forming activity within two years after menstru-ation begins.
"We're concerned that the percentage of women with osteoporosis may increase if cal-cium intake continues to remain low," he said. His results show that girls don't compensate for low intake by absorbing more from their diets. "If they don't ingest enough, they won't absorb enough."
According to the National Osteoporosis Foundation, half of American women over age 50 and three quarters over age 75 have significant bone loss.

Miller's Pool Supply moves to new location

Miller's Pool Supply, established in 1988, has moved to a brand new location, 211 Highway 90 East in Waveland, to better serve the area's customers. Miller, owner of Miller's Pool Supply, felt that a larger store would allow her to carry a wider selection and thus offer her customers more variety. The new 2,100 square foot location has plenty of room for the complete pool soon to be set up as well as other products to be displayed, including spas, arriving in September.

Kipsy Miller is knowledgeable in all areas of the pool industry with over 5 years experience to her credit. Kipsy believes in treating her customers honestly and fairly, that way she is assured they will be repeat customers. Apparently her philosophy has paid off considering the need for a much larger location.

Miller's Pool Supply carries a wide variety of parts and chemicals. They can even perform a computer chemical analysis on your pool water absolutely free of charge. And for those pool owners that love their pool but would rather have someone else maintain it, Miller's Pool Supply also offers maintenance packages.

As a special offer, Miller's is offering a 24 foot round, above ground pool, complete package for only $1,200.00. (excluding installation). And if you want a deck around your pool, Miller's Pool Supply can arrange that for you too. Miller's Pool Supply accepts Visa, MasterCard, American Express, personal checks and you can even layaway your pool. With Miller's Pool Supply here to serve you, owning a pool has never been easier. Visit Miller's Pool Supply at their new convenient location or call Kipsy at 467-2200 for more information.

Dan M. Young for all your appliance needs

Have you been considering purchasing a new appliance but haven't because you dread the thought of having to take a "road trip" to shop for it? Well, dread no more. Dan M. Young A/C and Appliance, established in 1984, now carries a wide variety of appliances for your home such as refrigerators, washers and dryers, ranges and dishwashers by Amana, York and Gibson.

Owners, Dan M. Young and Carol Young have been in the air conditioning business since 1969 and accredit the company's success to the quality of service that is provided to their customers. Reliable and dependable service has always been Dan M. Young A/C and Appliance's trademark.

Due to their growing clientele and to meet customer demand, Dan M. Young A/C and Appliance is moving to a new larger location, 835 Thames in Bay St. Louis, this coming fall. This new location offers much more space to display the top name brand appliances associated with Dan M. Young A/C and Appliance.

At Dan M. Young A/C and Appliance some things never change, such as the competitive pricing, excellent service and service after the sale. Add to this the knowledgeable and friendly staff of Mark Doucet, general manager, Sandy Stone, office clerk and a list of other professionals and you have a combination of service and dependability that can't be beat.

Visit Dan M. Young at their present location, 509 Ulman Avenue in Bay St. Louis and look for them soon at their new Thames Avenue location, or you may call 467-1770 for more information.
